Intro to Endnote: Generating Bibliographies

So you’ve got some citations imported, and you maybe have a group or two. Now creating a bibliography will be super easy. Yay!

Hover over Format and then select Bibliography

You’ll want to choose which group of citations you’d like to use, and then click Select Favorites next to Bibliographic Style.
Intro to Endnote: Generating Bibliographies

In the pop-up, select the styles you use most frequently (from the list of thousands!) and then click Copy to Favorites. Now your list will be more manageable.

Select the style you’d like to use as well as the file format (Rich Text File is best if you plan on using Word). Now you click Save.

You should always double-check your citations against your own knowledge. There might still be errors!